WASHINGTON, May 6, 1868

D C McKENNA and OTHERS Gentlemen I saw from the press notice of your county meeting held at Hankinsville, April 26th, you recommended that I be re-nominated by the Committee of the different counties of our Congressional District to become a candidate for Congress at the ensuing election. I am certainly under renewed obligations for the kindly feeling you express towards me, and I am glad to find that I cannot, under any circumstances, be such a

As you all know, I am fully committed to all the propositions you present, in my speeches made in Illinois and elsewhere, and have never gone back on taking back any thing but am more firmly convinced by events that I was right. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN A. LOGAN

The purport of the resolutions passed by the Union Convention at Mackinacville on the 23rd of April is that the loyal people should govern; that officers appointed or elected to office on the basis of the loyalty of the people and not their numbers, must of freedom, shield

The Senate-to-day took up and passed, with amendments, the House bill relating to public lands in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Florida, which provides that the public lands in these States shall be disposed of according to the provision of the Homestead Act, 1820, and no entry shall be made of more than 160 acres.

It being held ascertained that a number of persons from the South had been restored to the pension rolls after having been stricken therefrom for alleged complicity

THE President has granted a pension to J. M. Palmer, of Murfreesboro, Tennessee, formerly a Brigadier General in the rebel army.

NAPOLEON'S SPEECH.—A late dispatch says that the following is the text of Napoleon's speech at Austerlitz to which is attributed the causes for the financial panic in England and Europe:

I have a debt of gratitude to discharge toward you. This Department was the first to give me the suffrage in 1943, because it knew, with the majority of the French people, that its interests were my interests, and that I was interested equally with them those treaties of 1816 which it is now sought to make the sole basis of our foreign policy.

I thank you for the sentiments you have expressed toward me. Among you I breathe freely, for it is among

A FEMALE NOTABLE.—A Washington letter to the Milwaukee Journal says:

It is my custom, these days, to meet at the table at most times, the somewhat famous Mrs. Major Dr. Mary E. Walker, formerly assistant surgeon in the fifty-second Ohio Volunteers. She is a woman of rather less than medium size, with a lightish hazel eye, round a sunken face, and a slender figure, about thirty-five years of age. She wears boots to bad weather, pants and a buck collar coat, closely buttoned up, whilst in making her hand she wears a gay cap, decked with a plume. She has not a profound intellect, speaks slipshodly, becomes inflated in conversing upon ordinary matters, and has rather a military share of self-righteousness. She has a good upturn of herself and is not tardy in expressing it. At her waist glitters a chain and sundry other gaudy ornaments, and on her left breast she wears a star medal on which is the inscription: "The Congress to Dr. Mary E. Walker—only this and nothing more of this female disciple of Kerplunk!"

The army raised in the Revolution, from 1775 to 1783, amounted to 231,791, the militia adding one-half of that force, and the navy consisted of four vessels. In 1812 the regular numbered 32,540, the volunteers 6,000, the militia 30,000, and the navy consisted of eight frigates and 170 such as the Enterprise.

of war, with 4,477 guns; and the aggregate number of men raised for the Union armies to put down the rebellion was 2,638,000. If to the above be added the quotas constituting the Confederate armies, it will be found that the grand aggregate reached 4,000,000 of men at arms, the largest force ever yet put on a war footing in any other country, in any age of the world.
